Special Lectures

Songkhla as a UNESCO Creative City of Gastronomy

A distinctive feature of the camp is the “Songkhla as a UNESCO Creative City of Gastronomy” session, where participants explore how local food heritage, culinary wisdom, and community-based gastronomy contribute to sustainable development, cultural identity, and social resilience. Through expert lectures and site visits, students will learn how gastronomy in Songkhla goes beyond cuisine, serving as a creative tool for innovation, livelihoods, and community well-being.

From Thai Kitchen to Food Innovation for Emergencies

The “From Thai Kitchen to Food Innovation for Emergencies” session emphasizes the role of Thai food innovation in crisis and disaster response. Led by experts from PSU Faculty of Agro-Industry, participants will be introduced to innovative pouch food technology developed as emergency and survival meals. This food innovation has been practically applied as relief supplies for flood victims in Hat Yai during the recent flooding incidents, demonstrating how academic research can generate real-world impact. Students will gain insights into food processing, packaging, safety, and sustainability, as well as the humanitarian role of food innovation in emergency situations.

Thailand's SDGs: from Ideas to Impact

In alignment with the global development goals, the camp further explores “Thailand's SDGs: from Ideas to Impact”, showcasing how Thailand localizes the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) through education, community engagement, environmental conservation, and innovation. Participants will learn how universities, local communities, and industries collaborate to translate ideas into tangible outcomes that support sustainability, resilience, and inclusive growth.

Experience, Explore, Enjoy

Participants will be able to experience a broad variety of activities introduced and guided by knowledgeable instructors. For example, during the Thai Cooking session participants will cook and taste several Thai dishes, like the authentic and traditional Thai style “Tom Yam Kung.” Also, during the Thai Traditional Medicine class, Thai Herbs and Spa are introduced and participants will learn how to do themselves herbal medicines. They will take all knowledge back home, to apply it in their own country.

Field Trips

Participants have the opportunity to travel to and get first-hand information on historical places and renowned tourist attractions in Southern Thailand, such as:

- Songkhla: Samila Beach, Folklore Museum, Old Town, etc.
- Phuket: Tour & Snorkeling around white-sand islands, tropical beach, etc.
